One of the following statements is not correct about the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights:

- ☐ a. The Covenant provides for an optional procedure by which States may grant other States the right to bring a complaint against them before the Committee alleging the violation of human rights; however, before a complaint can be brought to the Committee, both States concerned must have accepted the procedure, and local remedies must first be exhausted.
- ☒ b. The only compulsory mechanism under the Covenant is a reporting system requiring States to submit periodic reports on their national human rights situation.
- ☐ c. The Human Rights Committee may admit an individual communication even if the alleged violations occurred before the entry into force of the Covenant for the State party concerned.
- ☐ d. The Human Rights Committee's jurisprudence holds that laws relating to property rights may violate articles 2 and 26 of the Covenant if they are discriminatory in character
